Day of the Dead Community Celebration!

Sunday, November 1, noon – 5 pm, FREE in Palo Alto

A festive celebration presented in conjunction with the Palo Alto Art Center's exhibition, Treasures from The Mexican Museum: A Spirited Legacy at four different venues.

- Palo Alto Art Center: art making and traditional music and dance performances co-sponsored by Raices de México* starting at noon.
- Children's Library: storytelling with Olga Loya at 1:30 and 2:30 pm.
- Main Library: teen workshop decorating sugar skulls at 3 pm.
- Junior Museum and Zoo: contribute to an altar commemorating extinct animals or in memory of your own special animal friend starting at 1 pm.

Participants in Children's Theatre's Night of the Living Dead will guide visitors between venues throughout the day—a festive and spooky procession for kids of all ages!

Food will be available for purchase at the Palo Alto Art Center and at Palo Alto Children's Library.

* Raices de México, a nonprofit organization, offers Mexican folklore dance, traditions, and music to children, teens and adults through quality performances and cultural workshops.
