PUBLIC ART IN PRIVATE DEVELOPMENT

The City of Palo Alto
Public Art Program
Why Public Art in Private Development?

The City of Palo Alto is committed to contributing to the intellectual, emotional and creative life of the Palo Alto community and creating engaging art experiences and dynamic public spaces for Palo Alto residents and visitors.

As a part of this commitment the City passed the Art in Private Development Ordinance which became effective on January 3, 2014. The Ordinance requires commercial developments to contribute to public art by commissioning artwork on their site, or contributing to the Public Art Fund, with the understanding that by doing so, they contribute to the vitality and livability of Palo Alto.

What Development Projects are Subject to the Ordinance?

The Ordinance establishes a requirement for public art for all new commercial developments, including new construction, remodels, addition and reconstruction with a floor area of 10,000 sq. ft. or more and construction valuation of $200,000 or more; and all new residential projects of five or more units.

“Public art has both intrinsic and instrumental value. Intrinsic value refers to the aesthetic value of any work of art. Instrumental value refers to the ability of art to educate, stimulate commerce, increase real estate value, build better citizens, increase tourism and provide other benefits.” John R. Caldwell, Arts Writer

Developer Options for the Public Art in Private Development Compliance

The Ordinance also provides the option of commissioning artwork on your site equal to 1% of the estimated construction value or paying the 1% to the Public Art Fund in-lieu of commissioning artwork.

The Ordinance allows a very broad spectrum of types of artworks – this creates opportunities for developers to bring engaging and diverse art experiences to the community. The City of Palo Alto Public Art Commission supports the commissioning process by providing recommendations to the developer.

Site Criteria and Requirements for Public Art

Public Art should be an original artist-designed work in any variety of styles and forms. It should be site specific and well integrated with its surroundings and accessible to the public for a minimum of 40 hours per week. It may include a vast spectrum of forms and media – from sculpture, murals and photography, to interactive video, light and sound installations, or integrated functional elements.
