

Public Art Commission Chair: Ben Miyaji

Ben Miyaji is serving his second term on the Palo Alto Public Art Commission and is currently the Chair. He is excited about the future of public art in Palo Alto, with the passing of the “Percent for Art in Private Development” ordinance and the Public Art Master Plan. He invites all Palo Alto residents to attend commission meetings and to participate in the Public Art Master Plan process.

Since his appointment in 1992 to the San Jose Arts Commission, Ben served seven terms on that commission. He was Chair of the Mineta San Jose International Airport Public Art Master Plan Steering Committee in 2004 and Ben was Metro Newspaper’s 2004 Public Art Person of the Year.